

Fall - Time for "Personal Harvest"

November 2016

FALL...

The air is cool and crisp. Leaves are starting to turn color and drop from the trees. Animals are gathering food and their fur is becoming dense. Mother nature is starting to prepare the earth for the onset of winter. She is letting go of the beauty she developed over the past seasons and getting ready for the slumber months.

For humans, Fall is a time to reflect on those things that are already in our life, things we want to change and what we would like to see - be it externally or internally within ourselves. It is a time to examine where we are at with our personal accomplishments, what we need, what we want to let go and what we want to amend. It is our time to harvest how we have grown personally in preparation for new beginnings.

At Human Connexus, we are starting to look back at the past year's events; gathering our knowledge and experiences to begin planning for the new year. We are always thankful for the people who have supported our efforts. We have learned immensely from our recipients and we look forward to new relationships and opportunities.

MEET AJANI

Ajani was born premature at 23 weeks and 3 days. When he arrived into this world, he only weighed 1 lb. 3 ounces. At the time, Ajani lungs were not fully developed and he was having major complications due to lack of oxygen. The doctor's prognosis was not positive and the family were preparing for a short life for their little boy. However, Ajani is strong and fought hard to keep going. The spirit of his two sisters helped him in his journey. He has now been at Lucile Packard Children's Hospital for one year. The family moved from Stockton, CA to Palo Alto to be near Ajani and give him all the love they can. Ajani's father was able to find a job at FedEx but finding housing near the hospital has been extremely difficulty on a limited income.

In the next month, Ajani will be moved to UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital in Oakland where he will continue to receive medical treatments. The family finally found affordable housing in the Oakland area and Ajani's father was able to transfer to the same area so he can be near his family. Financially, the family has lost all their assets. In the past year, they have lost their home, their car broke down, all of their savings as been depleted and any money set aside has been used to support this transition. Human Connexus Foundation is providing monthly housing assistance to the family as they transition to Oakland. Additionally, HCF provided funds to get their car repaired so transportation is not an issue.
